FRESH THINKING ON A VOLKS

Rear seats in travelling position, with gangway between.

Cab seats reversed – dining room for four.

VW Transporter layout has been fairly static for a few years, with bed-over-engine and kitchen along the offside wall. Diamond RV have discarded convention in their new model called 'Autocruiser' and have produced a 'fully winterised' small motorhome for two people.

There are – unusual in a Volks – twin single beds formed by reclining front seats and lining up with the rear seats. These, in travelling conformation, are fairly well forward, leaving floor space behind. So the kitchen finds itself over the engine deck. But the highlight must be the toilet/shower compartment at the rear which, coupled with the standard water heater and optional-extra Eberspacher space-heater and double glazing, makes this, indeed, a van for all seasons.

Island-leg table in dining room.

Rear seats can be pushed together to form a bench. Kitchen and toilet room are at rear.
